

SOME ASPECTS ON THE WORKS IN YOUNG BEECH STANDS

ELENA MIHAILĂ

Forest Research and Management Institute, Bucharest, Romania

ABSTRACT

Although they have not brought an immediate economic benefit, the achievement of the first tending operations is very important.

Their importance is reflected in the quality of the next works (the thinnings) to be done in the stand, in reducing the price for the next works, otherwise very high, and in the increasing of wood quality.

Researches accomplished considered some aspects related to thickness, quality of trees, preventing phenomena like: substitution of species, the main species loss in the composition.

Keywords: tending